DIONNES SUED FOR $1,000,000

HAUPTMANN IS CONVICTED

BLUEBIRD READY FOR 2nd TEST

$1,000,000 suit for breach of contract was filed against Olivia and Elzire Dionne, parents of the famous quintuplets, on Feb. 8 in Chicago. Ivan I. Spear, head of the United States Century of Progress Tour Bureau, filed the suit. Named as co-defendants with the Dionnes were Dr. Alan Defoe, several Chicago newspapers and several officials of the Canadian government.

Bruno Richard Hauptmann was convicted last Wednesday of the murder of the Lindbergh baby during its kidnapping three years ago.

The jury consisting of 8 men and 4 women, deliberated 11 hours and six minutes before rendering a verdict.

The week of March 18 is the date set in which he is to die; but an appeal to the New Jersey Court of Appeals and Errors will stay the execution, as the high court will not likely pass upon the appeal till May.

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla., Feb. 15.—A half dozen weary, loyal mechanics, the men behind the glamorous scenes on Daytona Beach reached the dawn today, dog tired but with their beloved baby, Sir Malcolm Campbell's Bluebird ready again for the races. It had come back to them yesterday after Campbell had made his first test ride, all out of kilter.

The beach was still rough, but winds bearing slowly to the northeast and rising tides indicated that beach conditions would be perfect in a few days.

MacMILLAN APPEAL IS DISMISSED

The appeal of Vivian MacMillan and her father against the judgment of Justice Tves in the MacMillan-Brownlee case, was dismissed by the appellate division of the supreme court of Alberta. Five separate judgments were handed down. Chief Justice Harvey, Justice Mitchell and Justice Ford held that the appeal should be dismissed on the ground that there was no proper evidence of damage upon which the jury could rightly enter the verdict it did. Justice Clarke and Justice Lunney held that the girl had sustained her action and in their judgment would award her damages of $10,000 and costs but they would dismiss the action of the father on the ground that there was no evidence of interference of the girl to serve, according to the meaning of the statute.

The cross appeal of the defendant asking that the Appellate bench say there was no proper evidence of seduction (let alone damages) was not upheld.

TALKS ON DIVERSIFIED FARMING

On Thursday afternoon last, Mr. Smith of the International Harvester Company gave an address to a group of very interested farmers.

After discussing various phases of live stock production the speaker dwelt particularly on the bacon production. He outlined what the packing houses demanded as 'select bacon' naming the breeds that most closely corresponded to this type. He stressed the fine points of the Yorkshire and Tamworth hogs and named a few other types, but advised that these did not come up to the standard demanded by the packing houses for 'select'. The speaker then proceeded to show that growing pigs must be fed on a growing ration to produce the necessary length of body; after this the hog was to be fattened by a finishing ration, which if given too soon, would produce a short fat butcher hog instead of a 'select'.

After the lecture as representative group of farmers and their wives, from a distance of 20 miles or more, joined the speaker with question which were eventually interrupted by the arrival of the school children for the free lunch.

On Tuesday morning the same speaker, Mr. Smith, returned after his visit to Munson and gave a very interesting address to the high school and grade 8.

His topic was entirely different from the preceding afternoon. In it he showed how the farm animals were simply machines for definite purpose and of definite capacities in order to get the most out of them they must be given food and care necessary for their particular productive purpose. After discussing interesting features of the dairy cow and hog he devoted the main part of his lecture to poultry particularly stressing egg production.

So eagerly was he questioned by the students, the future farmers of the district, that it was with difficulty that it was with difficulty that he tore himself away from the boys and girls at noon.

Mr. Smith has wonderful agricultural knowledge, both practical and theoretical. Those of us who heard him wish that the International Harvester Company could spare him from their illustration farm to give a series of lectures on other farm topics.

At 3 p.m. the chairman called for nominations for councillors in Divisions 2, 3 and 4, also for nomination of a representative on the Drumheller Municipal Hospital Board. The following were all declared elected by acclamation:

Division 2: J. J. Ohilhaus.

Division 3: J. R. McIlwain.

Division 4: Harold Offer.

G. H. Wilson was re-elected to represent the Drumheller Municipal Hospital Board.

The big event of 1935 will be the patriotic and picturesque functions of the 25th anniversary of King George's accession to the throne, set for May 6 next, which will continue until well into July. Summer editions of Canadian Pacific liners have been planned to coincide with those events.

The Laurentians, Eastern Canada's winter playground, face the biggest season in their history with an ambitious programme of ski events calling for 10 teams of various kinds, not counting the Dominion and international inter-collegiate championships extending from January 1 to April 21. It is announced by the Laurentian Amateur Ski Association.

Proved best for CHILDREN'S COLDS

VICKS VAPORUB

Two generations of mothers have proved Vicks Vaporub the safe, dependable way to treat colds, rub on throat and chest. Vapo-Rub fights a cold direct — two ways at once!

Through the skin it acts direct like a poultice or plaster. At the same time, its medicated vapors are inhaled with every breath to soothe inflamed air-passages of head, throat and bronchial tubes.

This combined action loosens phlegm — soothes irritated membranes — eases difficult breathing — helps break congestion.

AVOIDS "DOSING"
With VapoRub, you avoid the risks of constant internal dosing — which so often upsets children's delicate digestions and lowers resistance when most needed. VapoRub can be used freely, and as often as needed, even on the youngest child.

SYNOPSIS

"You've fallen her to a half-share in plenty of trouble," the lawyer told Gerald Keene. "The broken Spur has been systematically looting the ranch, and old Joe Carr, your partner, is drinking himself into ruin."

Dad Kane, desert rat and luckless prospector till now is returning to tell Durin and Spike Goddard, owners of the Broken Spur ranch, who had grubbed him, of his discovery of a rich gold mine, and the samples of ore. He sees Broken Spur men visiting Hour-Glass, and the law and protests against it.

Dustin unexpectedly comes along and seeing them, stops and talks to Edith. He mentions the Soda Springs dispute could be settled by marrying him, and Edith refuses his proposal with remarks that make Dustin furious. He hauls Stone, who promptly throws him into a pool of water.

Stone tells Carr, a hired man, about his meeting with Dustin, and is warned that Dustin would ruin him if he got the chance. Stone and Carr go to Seco to send a telegram to Gerald Keene. While at Seco an attempt is made to kidnap Stone, and proves more than a match for his cunning.

Dustin learns that Gerald Keene has been sent for, and also that Duro Stone has seen the Broken Spur men rustling Carr's cattle. He sets out with Dad Kane to leave the ranch, and of his gold discovery and appraise his value. Dad Kane shows Dustin the mine and sample of the rich ore he took from it.

They go back to camp, and Dustin shows Kane. He fixes the shooting on Payd Gregg, a happy life. And he is stupefied by the narcotic he had taken, did not know whether he was guilty or not. They leave Kane and turn to return to the Broken Spur ranch. Meanwhile at the Hour Glass, Carr, Stone and Carr speculate as to the meaning of entries in the notebook belonging to Dad Kane that Stone had found. Stone thinks of a possible solution, and accompanied by

There's nothing—absolutely nothing—to take the place of perfect health as the foundation of a happy life. And no better way for every one to get it than to turn to the use of this great, new, Vicks Vaporub.

Vicks Vaporub is a drug. It is simply the power of fine wine with all the valuable properties of the 21 lbs. of grapes which go to every bottle, combined with the strengthening elements of herb and guaranteed mint leaf extracts.

From your first glass of Vicks Vaporub you will feel your vigor stealing through your veins. But will sleep more soundly, wake more refreshed. In a few days you will feel the invigorating of your first half-well state. You will go through the most dreary days of the year with new vigor.

Twenty thousand doctors have recommended Vicks Vaporub for nervous disorder, anemia, debility, indigestion, and all other conditions. Start taking—and enjoying—Vicks Vaporub. It's the great drug of the Vicks Vaporub—Sole Agents: Harold F. Lusk & Co., Ltd., Toronto.

Edith Carr, rides out to Red Water to test out his theory
(Now Go On With The Story)

"It's his glory hole," he said. "He made a cut in the hill. I suppose he picked up a vein of ore along the hillside and followed it till it went into the hill. Then he dug after it and he got it. This."

He turned the specimens of ore over and over in his hands and his eyes took on a curious look.

"My Lord," he said softly. Then again, "My Lord! It isn't possible."

There was that in his voice that carried conviction to her, too, and she seized his arm in a frenzied clutch.

"What is it?" she asked. "Oh, what is it?"

"I'm not quite sure. I'm no metallurgist but . . . It looks like the real thing, Edith. Any assayer can tell us. It looks to me as if our friend Kane had found a damned good vein of gold on the Hour-glass land. At least we'd better pay it's on the Hour-glass. . . I've seen a lot of ore in Arizona and California and I'm sure I'm right."

"Oh . . ." Words failed her for a minute. "Then it will put Hour-glass on its feet."

"Yes. If we're right but . . . Edith . . . I'll be much wiser to send a word about it till we find out. I can send these samples off and have them assayed. When we have the assayer's report it will be time to tell your father. You know the effect a disappointment might have on him."

Her eyes filled as she glanced at him. So he, too, knew old Joe Carr's weakness! Yet . . . How recently he covered his knowledge! She was suddenly glad that she could trust him.

"I'll do exactly as you advise," she said quietly. "But it'll be all that I can do to keep it secret. We'll not say a word of what we've found."

"Not till we have got the assayer's report, and most important of all, till we have found old man Kane. You see it is sure that Kane and Dustin are partners. I'm not well versed in the law but I'm under the impression that one who finds a vein of ore can follow it even under that belongs to some one else."

If Kane and Dustin both know of this find, it means trouble. . . unless we can get in ahead of them. Let's get back at once."

They got their ponies and headed back for the Hour-glass.

CHAPTER XI

A sudden word from Stone made Edith start. She was looking down low on the near side of his horse and was studying the soft shaly soil. At her unspoken question he pointed that way.

"Packed burro and ponies have been along here very long ago," he said. "Now can you tell that but a burro. See that soft soil over there. Some animal has rolled there. I'm sure it was a horse. Let's go and follow the tracks. They don't seem to leave the trail very much."

Here's old Kane's fire," he said. "It hasn't been out very long. How do I know? Because if it had been out very long the wind would have drifted sand over the ashes. There are none. . . No sands I mean. What's that . . . ?"

He stood at gaze staring at a great buzzard that was crow-hopping near the fire. He threw a rock at it and the ungainly bird hopped off among the low scrub. He dropped his reins and hurried across the flat and saw the reason for the bird's actions in the result of a piece of bacon rind that lay before him. It had been dragged from the fire by the buzzard seeking off. Stone picked it up and carried it back to the fire.

"It hasn't been a sample of the same kind of rock you found in the cut in the hillside," said Edith quickly. She picked up a lump of rock lying by the fire. Stone picked it up and examined it curiously. It was stained along one side with a curious brownish stain. He paid no attention to that stain but dropped the rock in his pocket when his eye was caught by a lump of rock lying on the ground. While Edith was looking about her for other things, Stone carefully swept up certain odds and ends that lay half-hidden by the sands. Three cigarette butts were there and a green-and-red paper torn from a package of foreign matches.

Stone considered them, swept them into a heap and thrust them into his pocket.

"We may as well get on," he said swinging into saddle. "There's no doubt about it. Old man Kane made his camp here when he located that glory hole. If it had been a long time ago that bacon rind would have either been eaten up or else would have been hard and dry. He was here and long ago."

"What else did you find?"

"Nothing much. Let's hit the trail!" Their ponies walked neck-and-neck along the narrow track and Edith turned to her companion.

"What shall we tell them at the Hour-glass?" she asked suddenly.

"Oh, we'll just tell them that we found where old Kane's been at work. Then I'll slip the ore-samples off to an assayer unless I can get some one in Seco to do it. Better and I away, though. We don't want to start something that we can't finish. It's likely to start a stampede if the ore-samples show real gold in paying quantities. . . And I'm sure they're rich. First of all, though, we must find old Kane. But it's deeper than that, I fear. Kane has found the ore. Kane is a partner of Dustin. Is Kane a question of how honest Dustin is. Can you trust him?"

"Yonder's the ranch," she said and pointed to a distant blur on the flat plain at their feet.

They came racing down the slope, their excited horses running neck-and-neck to the rhythmic thunder of the hoofbeats and the light click-click of the shifting bits.

"Oh . . ." She paused breathlessly. "That was glorious! I wish you'd ride with me every day. Who's that? That is some one coming from the Hour-glass."

They passed on the slope to watch a horse swing out of the house corner at the Hour-glass and head toward them along the narrow trail at a headlong run. From time to time he flung his head angrily and half-glanced into the air at times.

"That's Dustin's big black," said Edith sharply. "I wonder what he's been at the Hour-glass for?"

"No good I bet. He's voracious his horse unmercifully. That's what makes him jump like that."

Beyond a doubt it was Sam Dustin. Edith gave a quick glance at the swiftly-moving horse that was heading straight for them. The trail to the house ran between two lines of barbed wire; five strands of it set on heavy posts with a tangle of mesquite scrub along the wire. There was ample room in that lane for two horses to pass. . . But would the black pass?

Behind him instinctively what would happen. She saw the full termination in Dustin's pose. She knew that in every rood and riding contest in three counties Sam Dustin had been victor so often that men could be found with difficulty to ride against him. There was not a soul in the Valley who could compare with him.

The oncoming horse stretched out faster and faster and a running horse cannot be turned. He must run straight! She cast an anxious look over her shoulder at the fence. There was no hope for escape there. No range-horse would face such a leap. She looked again at the black

"Sam Dustin? Trust Sam Dustin!" Her voice expressed such wonder at the question that he grimaced behind a hand. "Why, I would trust a convicted thief first."

"That's about what I figured," he said. "Well . . . I had better be on our way. I'll be late when we get back to the ranch."

They rode along through that golden afternoon. The western sun shed an aureate blanket over mesquite jungle and cactus scrub and the soft desert dust threw a soft mantle over them and through that mantle Stone was always aware. Edith was always aware of the stride of her horse. What a wife she would make!

What it would mean to a man to know that when he came back to the Hour-glass from hard riding in the distant hills that such a girl would be waiting for him. If she sensed his thoughts, she treated them lightly.

"Yonder's the ranch," she said and pointed to a distant blur on the flat plain at their feet.

They came racing down the slope, their excited horses running neck-and-neck to the rhythmic thunder of the hoofbeats and the light click-click of the shifting bits.

horse. She could see Dustin's face low and that face without a trace of mask of indifference. She remembered the quarrel of the two men at Soda Springs. Dustin's eyes were alight with a light that she knew instinctively though she had never seen it before and she knew what it portended. Sam Dustin, the best rider in three counties, meant to ride down his enemy in the golpe de caballo, the collision of horses! That golpe de caballo was a recognized form of dueling in days before the pistol was a part of every man's equipment and many a man has been left on the plains with a broken neck or back as a result of it.

"The golpe de caballo," she called faintly. "Look out, Dustin! He means to ride you down . . ."

Range-ride though she was, Edith's Carr's eyes were not quick enough to see what happened. Her gaze was centered on the furious oncoming Dustin so she missed the deft touch on the bit with which Stone gathered his great horse. That light touch brought the head down and chin down and in it seemed to touch the broad chest to quicken pressure of the rider's legs brought the horse up to the bit and for one moment the great Isabella horse half-crouched, a coiled steel spring utterly subservient to his rider's will. His weight was gathered; his balance poised on those powerful hind-quarters. Dustin was within fifty yards . . . Forty . . . Thirty . . . Was Duro Stone a complete fool? Did he think that for one moment his horse could stand the shock or did he simply not understand? No amateur could face Sam Dustin on his famous black that had been trained to this sort of contest. Thirty . . . Twenty yards and still no action!

Suddenly it came and it came so quickly that the eye could hardly follow it.

Little Helps For This Week

We know that we have passed from death unto life, because we love the brethren. 1 John 3:14.

Mutual love the token be. Love that we belong to Thee; Love, Thine image, love impart; Stamp it on us be given; Only love to us be given; Lord, we ask no further heaven.

Oh, how many times we must of us can remember when we would gladly have made any compromise with our conscience, would gladly have made the most costly sacrifices to God, if He would only have excused us from the duty of loving of which our nature seemed utterly incapable. It is far easier to feel kindly, to act kindly, towards those with whom we are seldom brought into contact, whose tempers and prejudices do not rub against ours, whose interests do not clash with ours, than to keep up an habitual steady self-sacrificing love towards those whose weaknesses and faults are always forcing themselves upon us, and are stirring up our own. Why at 40 You Think You're "GROWING OLD"

It's frequently just an "idea." Not "Old Age," And According to Scientists, May Be Something Rather Alarming Than A Touch Of Acid Stomach.

At 40, many people think they're "growing old." They're tired a lot. Have headaches. Stomach upsets. Disturbances. Well, scientists say the cause, in a large measure, is a mere condition of the stomach. The thing to do is simply to neutralize the excess stomach acidity.

When you have one of these acid stomach upsets, all you do is take Phillips' Milk of Magnesia after meals. It's the only liquid many people can take in a condition of the stomach. The thing to do is simply to neutralize the excess stomach acidity.

Try this. You'll feel like another person. Take either the familiar liquid "PHILLIPS' Milk," or the convenient new Phillips' Milk of Magnesia Tablets. Made in Canada.

THAT FIRST BRANCH BANK AND 500 MORE

The founders of the Bank of Montreal firmly believed in branch banking. Two weeks after opening the Bank in Montreal on November 1st, 1817, the directors appointed an agent at Quebec. By the following June the agency was made an "Office of Deposit and Discount," and thus the first branch came into being. Two others soon were created—in Kingston and York (afterward Toronto). Those early bankers sought to extend and perpetuate for the farmers and merchants, the benefits and stimulus of a branch banking system the worth of which had been abundantly proved in the British Isles. Thus they introduced one of the elements of elasticity for which the Canadian banking system has received so much praise.

Consistently, throughout the decades, the Bank of Montreal has added branches wherever business warranted, giving to new and growing communities the advantages of banking strength, ample facilities and sound management. Today over 500 branches are serving Canada. Each branch is the Bank of Montreal, with all the facilities and public service for which the institution is known.

From the first branch in Quebec to the most recent one opened, the spirit of the Bank of Montreal is expressed—and will continue to be expressed—in terms of useful banking.
